About

Alexis Kings are set to release their debut EP "1972" which includes Three of their biggest anthems including their debut single "Get Set Go Home" Their unique sound of Indie Rock with an infusion of old school Hip-Hop, has been well received around the London area, leading them to play sell out shows at top London venues such as The Camden Barfly, The Horn, Camden Enterprise and Nambucca and as a support act for The Happy Monday's and Futureproof.

Their Live shows have also attracted some established music press, including features on the NME website. Furthermore, the band have been progressively gaining a lot of attention from local radio and from BBC Introducing for their expected release of EP "1972"

Hailing from St Albans, members Brendan and Sam are currently studying at University, but spend all their free time gigging in and around the London area and both giving up promising modelling careers to concentrate on their music.

The band have been influenced by some iconic rock acts such as The Rolling Stones, Kings of Leon and Arctic Monkey's and old school hip hop acts such as Biggie Smalls and Wu Tang Clan which can be heard in their track "Get Set Go Home" with a little help from their friend, grime artist, AMP.

The band have some great things lined up, with a string of expected live shows to go along with the release of the EP, and to continue to write new material. This is promising to be yet another sell out and to continue to grow their fan base, based on their fantastic live shows.
